Stop parenting on autopilot

Most of us are parenting reactively, either just the way we were parented or exactly opposite that.

This is your chance to choose the parent you want to be, create a home you love and consciously design the most important arena of your life.

See what others are saying about Loving Leadership:

"It was an awe-inspiring, educational, emotional, supportive experience that changed everything about how I saw myself and my role in my family."

"Quite simply it saved our family from a lot of damage; we have been able to course-correct and find a lot of strength and serenity in our parenting... Changed our family forever."

"My relationship with my son has improved, mostly because I have learned the limits of my responsibilities, authority and power over people and outcomes."

"My relationship with my daughter, son and husband are better than they were before."

"We quickly learned how to reframe our approach to parenting our teen and our philosophy... we were able to evolve what we believed to be our role."

"Bailla's approach to parenting is directive, kind, empathetic, definable, consistent, clear, measurable and connecting... and identifying and staying within your own agency."
